

Community-Based Relief

Think Tank+

A unique strategy-to-action session to discover uncommon answers for kids in uncommon times.

The data speaks for itself – community connections are a vital antidote to hard times. And our kids are in trouble. We'll have to get them immediate relief and some solutions have to be without additional funds. Communities, whether a workplace, a church, a club, or neighborhood association have expertise matching resources, managing communications, and reaching kids. Idaho KIDS COUNT is putting resources behind community leadership. We're providing a unique space, skilled and dynamic people, and some clear, universal tools to help you implement one great idea now – through a community base you represent. As well, you can help by swapping your expertise with other community leaders with a reputation for making a difference.

When: Thursday Nov 5
8am - 3pm

Where: Meet @ Thomas Hammer on 8th + Bannock for a unique meet + greet. A little later we'll walk a few blocks to the Empire Building. Wear comfy clothes + shoes.
